Building Regulatory Competence for a Safer, Compliant Workplace

About the Programme

An EHS Legal Register provides a structured repository of applicable Acts, Rules, Regulations, Notifications, Standards, Licenses and statutory requirements relevant to an organization's operations. Effective EHS compliance requires a systematic mechanism to identify, interpret, implement, monitor and demonstrate compliance with legal and regulatory requirements. With the implementation of the OSHWC Code, 2020, organizations must review and update their compliance registers — the Code consolidates several labour laws, including the Factories Act, 1948.
